HOLIDAY CROWD AT AUTO SHOW

ITS AT THE GARDEN. New Novelties Include a Massive Steam the Show-Col. John Jacob Astor Among These Who Purchase Machines.

It was a great day throughout for the Automobile Show yesterday. Instead of the elec-tion holiday affecting it disastrously, as had been feared, it was beneficial. The Garden was filled with eager sightseers. It was a more fashionably-dressed crowd than appeared on Monday night and a more vivacious one. The show had more vivacity than at any time since it began. There were beautiful women and stunning costumes by the score and the men in the exhibitors' booths were inspired to greater activity. The absence of action on a track was scarcely missed. action on the streets outside. From 9 o'clock in the morning till 3 o'clock in the afternoon a dozen exhibitors are busy taking visitors out for a ride. It is daily being more deeply impressed upon both visitors and exhibitors that this is a great show. Even the manufacturers keep finding new improvements in each other's spaces and commenting on the tremendous advance that has been made since last year.

As is usual at shows of this kind new features continue to arrive. Yesterday there was brought in an enormous steam carries a load of the same weight. engine, of twenty horse power, burns hard coal and is placed at the front end. The exhaust runs out through the smokestack, so that it is kept superheated, and issues from the top invisibly. The truck is 18 feet long over all, with a wheel buse of 10 feet and wheels 5 feet 7 inches apart in width. It was made in this city and has been in use for nearly a year. The price of it is $3,500. Another new arrival was a small gas carriage with tonneau body. It is the smallest ton-neau in the show and exceptionally neat in neau in the show and exceptionally heat in appearance. It is of one cylinder, five horse power and seats four persons. Although it is not a show of souvenir hunters but of wealthy and earnest seekers after information, and as a whole the crowd is of more than average intelligence, some funny things are heard. Last night a man who had been examining one of the big speeding cars turned to the attendant and asked: "Is it necessary to have a chiffonier to run run it?"

Another incident that provoked bystanders Another incident that provided objects and to a grin was when a man and a woman were looking at one of the lighter made machines on which was a sign stating that the carriages were made "with or without rumble." The woman, full of astonishment, said to her of Undue Criticism. INTEREST INCREASES IN EXHIB-AUSTIN, Tex., Nov. 5.—Prof. J. E. Pearce, principal of the Austin High School, has been exonerated by the City Board of School Trustees of the charge made against him by the Austin Ministers' Association that he criticised the Bible in a classroom lecture. Prof. Pearce appeared before the trustees to-day and made an explanation of the circumstances which led to the charge against him. He said:

When explaining to a class in geology the status and composition of the earth, the status and composition of the earth, the statement was made that a large part of the earth's surface was composed of various substances from which life had been extinct for years and which had undergone countless changes by the action of air and water, heat and cold. The question being asked by one pupil, how much time this had taken. I replied that the process had probably been going on for millions of years. The Bible's statement of the earth's creation, as told in the Book of Genesis, being referred to, I stated that scientists and many ministers now interpretated the seven days to mean seven periods of time.

scientists and many ministers now interpretated the seven days to mean seven periods of time.

"I am a Christian myself and always endeavor to conduct myself in a consistent Christian manner, and I regret exceedingly that any contrary impression should have gone forth. Every teacher finds it difficult to explain satisfactorily to the pupils the seeming conflict between lessons learned in the textbooks with the religious teachings the children have had at home. When the history teaches that a certain barbarian ruler promised to become a Christian when he should win a certain battle, and did embrace Christianity, yet continued his barbarous ways, it is difficult to explain the inconsistency to the children and when the history of the Chaldeans differs from the history of the Jews, as told in the Bible, it is not easy to convince the children that both accounts can be practically correct."

N. P. SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT.

BASIS OF AGREEMENT WITH UNION PACIFIC SETTLED ON.

J. Hill Makes This Announcement -- N. P. Stock Will Probably Be Transferred to Investment Company in Which Morgan-Hill and U. P. Interests Share Alike President James J. Hill of the Great

Northern Railroad said yesterday that a general basis of settlement of the Northern Pacific-Burlington controversy had been agreed upon, but that the details had not been arranged. He was confident that the outcome would be entirely satisfactory to all parties interested. Mr. Hill did not look for an immediate public announcement of the result. The interests involved, he said, were so extensive and so complicated that it might take considerable time to adjust matters.

It is believed that the Northern Pacific stock will be transferred to an investment company in which both the Union Pacific interest and the Morgan-Hill interest will have an equal share. The preferred stock of the Northern Pacific will not be retired at present, but will go into the new company at about 110. Mr. Hill has withdrawn his demand that this preferred stock be retired on Jan. 1, 1902. His withdrawal, it is stated on the best authority, was caused by the positive stand taken by J. Pierpont Morgan in favor of giving the Union Pacific interests all the protection and permanent rights asked the protection and permanent rights asked for by Mr. Harriman.

Both Mr. Morgan and Mr. Harriman are disposed to await the decision of W. K. Vanderbilt regarding certain disputed points before declaring any final settlement of this much-talked-of controversy. Mr. Vanderbilt was asked to act as arbitrator on these points, and, inasmuch as he will be here to-morrow or Thursday, there is no likelihood that any conclusive statement will be made for several days.

THE WAIST THE WOMAN MADE And the Comments of Her Friends When They Heard She Created It.

The woman went downstairs into the parlor and stood before the mirror looking at herself. She wore a gray skirt and a pink flannel waist. The others sat around "My!" they exclaimed. "A new waist!

Beautiful! Where did you get it?" and one, catching herself in the act of adding.
"What did you pay for it?" clapped her hand over her mouth and laughed. The woman pulled the waist down in front and adjusted it.

"I didn't buy it ready made," she answered
"I made it myself."

"I made it myself."

After a moment of dubious inspection she added moodily:

"I hate anything I make myself. It seems to me I can see blazing in flery letters all over it. I made it myself."

"How silly you are," exclaimed the girl with the yellow hair. "How can you talk so? That waist is exquisite. Isn't it, Julia? Perfectly exquisite! I never saw you wear anything so becoming, so—. The idea of such a thing! Such a shade of pink! Lovely! Lovely!"

"You have puckered it here just a little, haven't you?" she asked by and by. "Or it needs taking up some. Look, Julia. Don't you think it needs taking up here?"

Julia, rising from the couch, thoughtfully advanced and took up a position at the shoulder. She frowned ruminatingly.

"She has puckered it," she decided.

"Pretty badly, too. But that is nothing," brightly. "It is the easiest thing in the world to remedy. Take out the upper part of the sleeve and rip the shoulder from the neck. Then sew it all over again."

Making a half circuit she investigated the other shoulder.

"Umph, hum," she nodded. "This is exactly like it. Alike as two peas. They will both have to be ripped open and fixed."

The two walked 'round and 'round the woman, who regarded her own face sadly reflected in the mirror above the two shoulder seams that would have to be ripped open and fixed, and waited
